“ Joe loved watching old, corny movies. When I would come over he'd say "Have you seen this", and I'd be like "Yes, the last 10 times I was here"! But I'd always end up watching it again like it was the first time. Joe was an excellent woodworker. He made my kitchen table which I will cherish forever. He is such a generous soul, that he even made my parents a couple benches. Joe loved his guns and those lottery scratch offs. He loved going to church, and if his health had been better, he would have gone way more than he could. Joe made the "Best" Macaroni Salad and he knew it! He'd always call it " World Famous! Joe kept his money in the upper pocket of his shredded T-shirt and never lost it. Drove me nuts! Joe was the blueprint of what an excellent friend should be. My heart is selfishly broken for now, but I know he is with Our Lord. I will miss him deeply. God Bless and protect him and his family.

“ Joe was very proud of his family and shared funny stories. I loved to hear him joke around and laugh. Joe also talked about his faith in God and how much he wanted to talk to people about the Lord. Joe was a dear friend and I will miss him and remember him always.

I had not seen Joe in many years. I am sad to read he has passed. He was a gentle giant, so sweet and caring. The last time I seen him he had moved from Waynesboro and his health and began to decline. You are pain free now my friend. Rest easy Joe, until we meet again.
